FROM THE PRESIDENT

Celebrating Our Past – Creating Our Future

Few organizations in history persist to celebrate 150 years. While we take time to celebrate our past, we recognize that we must now step forward to create our future. Our commitment, indeed our destiny, is to meet the future needs of our students and community partners. We do this with our mission in mind: to serve as an institution that excels in teaching; to focus on providing opportunities, primarily for undergraduate students; and to be an excellent community partner. We live this mission with our motto, non nobis solum, not for ourselves alone.

Traditional universities have two major classes of assets: the physical campus and the professoriate. As we grow and change, we have a number of projects under way arising from our strategic plan that support the first asset, our physical campus.

I have previously written about our plans for a Welcome Center in Morgan Hall awaiting prospective students and parents and providing a student services area so all students may conveniently transact all business with the university. We will create an iconic new entrance for the university and enhance landscaping on the north side of Morgan Hall. This total project will dramatically redefine how people think about Washburn's physical presence in Topeka.

Our next ambitious goal is to construct a new law building designed to meet the current needs in legal education. This will be located on the corner of 21st and Washburn and again will be a building that symbolizes Washburn, our history and our future.

We have initiated a comprehensive campus master planning effort. Our internal and external campus communities are working with consultants to plan the future physical presence of the campus. We do this recognizing that part of Washburn's legacy is its beautiful campus and architecture.

We will be successful in these endeavors as a result of the strength of our culture, our faculty, staff and students; strong leadership throughout the institution; great community support; and the tremendous support of our alumni and Washburn University Foundation. Together we will create a bold and exciting future.

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

Washburn administrators use the adjectives ‘iconic’ and ‘magical’ to describe the university’s Welcome Center/Morgan Hall project.

Scheduled to be completed by the school’s sesquicentennial in 2015, the multi-million-dollar facility connected to Morgan Hall will not only serve as a “grand front door” as people enter the campus from 17th Street, but also simplify administrative processes for students and prospective students.

“A big piece of this is to create this first image of Washburn, this welcoming environment for parents and students when they visit,” said President Jerry Farley. “When you think of campus, we have multiple entry points. But where’s the front door? When you come to (Morgan Hall) right now, you really don’t know you’ve arrived at Washburn. The Welcome Center will change that.”

FROM THE NOTE PAD

"We have several entrances, but no grand entrance. What this Welcome Center will do is create an iconic image once you've arrived. It truly is going to be a grand statement for Washburn."

1966 tornado.

The Living Learning Center, built in 2002, also features a design modeled after the bell tower structure.

"When we were looking at building the Living Learning Center, we hit upon the idea of stylizing that bell tower," Farley said. "What it does is tie together the history of Washburn. That's why we wanted to incorporate a bell tower into the Welcome Center."

The estimated cost of the Welcome Center

The Center also will serve as a one-stop service shop for students, who can pay for tuition, apply for financial aid and request a transcript, among many other transactions, in a single location.

"The one-stop service center is going to change the way we do business," said Richard Liedtke, executive director, enrollment management. "We'll interact with students in a way that gives them the most efficient way to conduct business."

AT THE FRONT DOOR

Though plans aren't finalized, construction on the Welcome Center is scheduled to begin in 2013, with a target date of completion in 2015.

The Center will be connected to the front of Morgan Hall and feature a bell tower modeled after the tower in the Thomas Gymnasium, a historic building destroyed in the 1966 tornado.

The Living Learning Center, built in 2002, also features a design modeled after the bell tower structure.

"When we were looking at building the Living Learning Center, we hit upon the idea of stylizing that bell tower," Farley said. "What it does is tie together the history of Washburn. That's why we wanted to incorporate a bell tower into the Welcome Center."

The estimated cost of the Welcome Center

construction and Morgan Hall renovation is in the $17-million range, the majority of which will be raised by the Washburn University Foundation.

"No tuition dollars are going into this project," Liedtke said. "This is what's exciting about Washburn: We have wonderful alumni and donors who have supported this university and propelled this university to be one of the best in the nation when it comes to Foundations. They support us not only in building, but in scholarships and other areas."

BETTER BUSINESS

Imagine paying tuition, obtaining a transcript and filing for financial aid without visiting multiple offices. All of that, and much more, will be possible in the newly renovated facility.

Though the offices hosting administrative processes for prospective students and current students are located in Morgan Hall, they are not centralized. For example, the registrar's office is on the west end of the first floor, the business office on the east end of the second floor and the financial aid office on the second floor.

"The plan is to have generalists on the front line who can work with students in any capacity," Liedtke said. "The generalists will be able to process forms, communicate directions and access information in our computer system. Our goal is for 80 percent of the informational and directional, processing, help desk kind of work to be done at a one-stop desk."

"The remaining 20 percent, whether it's an issue in financial aid, the registrar's or business office, we'll send them to someone in one of those offices who can dig deeper for them."

Admissions, currently split into two offices in Morgan Hall, will have one larger office in the Welcome Center.

"I'm excited for it. It's going to be very beneficial for our students and all the staff," said Kris Klima, interim director, admissions. "Students will be able to easily transition from one area or department, and it'll be more efficient for us. This will have a significant impact at Washburn."

INVESTING IN OUR FUTURE

By Kathy Busch • kbusch@wufoundation.org

Over the years, Washburn has done an outstanding job of looking to the future, of taking bold steps to ensure the success of students. Part of that success relies on spaces where students learn, live and work during one of the most transformational times of their lives.

For more than 50 years, Morgan Hall has been a hub of activity on the Washburn campus for students, parents, faculty, administration and visitors.

Much has changed since the facility opened its doors in 1956. Washburn has more students, more faculty, a broader curriculum, more extracurricular activities and a deeper connection to the community.

In March 2012, the Board of Regents approved the addition of a Welcome Center and the renovation of Morgan Hall to better serve the needs of today's students and those of the future.

"Updating and modernizing the north side of the building facing 17th Street will create a dynamic front door to the university, inviting everyone to enter the campus and become part of the high-quality educational experience at Washburn,” said President Jerry Farley.

The addition of a contemporary Welcome Center and a convenient, modern student services area is an important step in moving Washburn forward and supporting the success of students. The Welcome Center will convey a sense of pride in Washburn and showcase what it means to be an Ichabod to everyone who comes to campus, university leaders said.

“This building touches all potential and returning students, their families and any visitors to campus,” said JuliAnn Mazachek, president, Washburn University Foundation. “This renovation of Morgan Hall is an investment in our students, our faculty and Washburn University. The generosity of our alumni and friends will help make this vision a reality.”

MOVING WASHBURN FORWARD

This is a pivotal moment for Washburn. Now is the time to invest in our future. The Welcome Center and the renovation of Morgan Hall will include:

- A welcoming front door to campus that reflects the quality of the student learning experience, academics and spaces at Washburn
- A Hearth Room adjacent to the Welcome Center with a warm “living room” atmosphere where students can congregate
- A one-stop student center on the north side of Morgan Hall that will serve as a single access point to student services
- An updated Student Health Center with separate waiting rooms for well and sick patients as well as private counseling space
- Additional classrooms
- Outside spaces such as a front lawn and park area, a plaza-like entrance to the facility, a west plaza with outside fireplace and covered seating, and a covered entrance on the east side

The Welcome Center and renovation of Morgan Hall will only be possible with the support and generosity of our alumni and friends. The Washburn University Foundation will be coordinating the fundraising efforts to make this vision a reality.

BELL TOWERS

The Welcome Center’s design will include a bell tower, which has become a recognizable symbol on campus.

Thomas Gymnasium, which was destroyed in the 1966 tornado, included a bell tower.

The Living Learning Center, which opened in 2002, includes a bell tower design inspired by the Thomas Gymnasium.

THE FUTURE OF WASHBURN LAW

By Kathy Busch • kbusch@wufoundation.org

The Washburn University School of Law has provided nearly 50 years of education in its current location. Constructed after the 1966 tornado, the building has undergone numerous additions and renovations to improve the educational experience and program offerings for students.

After a review and comparison of the learning spaces in the current facility with the needs of future students, the university concluded that now is a pivotal moment to move forward with a new facility, which will be built on the corner of 21st and Washburn Avenue.

FROM THE NOTE PAD

"It is going to be a spectacular site coming into a major intersection in Topeka, a major pathway to the campus. That corner is crying out for a classic, important building, and the law school is a perfect fit for that."

— President Jerry Farley

more specialized programs. New courses require different spaces, teaching resources and technology.

The School of Law also needs additional common space for students for the Centers for Excellence, law library, law clinic and a second courtroom.

"We must stay ahead of the curve of the changing requirements for lawyers," said Thomas Romig, dean, School of Law. "A new law building will position Washburn Law as one of the premier venues in legal education. That will help us strengthen our national reputation and attract the best and most highly talented students and faculty for many years to come."

"We have so many generous donors and friends who have supported the law school over the past 50 years," said JuliAnn Mazachek, president, Washburn University Foundation.

"Now is the time to invest in the future of our students. Your support can help us take this next bold step."

FANTASTIC 15 FOR FARLEY

By Michaela Saunders
michaela.saunders@washburn.edu

Washburn University has transformed in the last 15 years from what some called sleepy to vibrant and remains focused on its roots of serving all students, no matter when or how they arrive.

Many on campus attribute the change to Jerry Farley, who was inaugurated as president July 1, 1997. Washburn's 16th president, Farley is known for his bow ties, outgoing personality and passion for both Washburn and Topeka.

"Washburn University is riding a wave of success that is the result of 15 years of hard work by Dr. Farley and his leadership team and all of the fantastic individuals at this university," said Cynthia Hornberger, special assistant to the president, who was a faculty member when Farley came to campus. "He has enabled the university to redefine itself and realign itself to its original mission."

JuliAnn Mazachek, president of the Washburn University Foundation, wrote a nomination letter on Farley's behalf for a chief executive leadership award in 2007. "Dr. Farley's 10 years as President of Washburn have changed the face and future of Washburn University," she wrote. "Washburn has moved to new levels of excellence across campus."

Farley won that award from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education District VI and kept right on going.

Since Farley arrived on campus, nine buildings have been constructed or renovated, one has been moved to campus, Yager Stadium at Moore Bowl has been revitalized, Washburn and its Ichabods have become recognizable far beyond Topeka and the university has enjoyed record student enrollment.

Farley said he didn't come to campus 15 years ago with a "grand plan" but remembers feeling that Washburn was "just on the edge of being able to do something, to really take the next step. It just needed the right amount of ambition and self-confidence as an institution."

So he set about listening, learning and getting involved with the community. His first major project on campus was construction of the Living Learning Center, which he said was the pivotal point in an attitude shift from "We're here, come if you'd like" to "We're here and we may be the place for you."

President Farley has made bow ties his signature accessory, though they usually aren't this large.
File Photo

ALL ABOUT THE BOW TIE

Before coming to Washburn, Farley only occasionally wore his now iconic bow ties. The first one he ever bought – on a whim while vacationing with his wife, Susan, in Branson, Mo. – is now one of about 100 different ties.

His first official Washburn photo shows him in a necktie. And a photo from the Oct. 31, 1997, edition of the Washburn Review shows him at his desk in a dress shirt and dark neck tie. "People wouldn't believe that now," Farley said with a laugh.

He's sported only bows since fall 1997 when an article featuring him said, as Farley recalls it, anyone could find him because he's the one in the bow tie.

"I haven't taken it off since."

"The idea took root, and we were able to build it," Farley said, recalling the effort of gathering support for the $20 million project that changed the heart of campus.

Today the difference is unmistakable. Washburn has gone from fewer than 200 bed spaces on campus in 1997 to 676 today, with a waiting list for the Living Learning Center. More students are coming directly from high school and from outside of Topeka. More students become alumni who are involved on campus. And more alumni and community partners are giving financially to support Washburn's growth.

Washburn is a more comfortable place to live, study and play. The grounds are meticulously landscaped for aesthetic enjoyment of the campus community and visitors. And future efforts will add even more energy to campus.

Farley said he expects a study this fall related to residence hall demand and likely more construction. He is excited about the creation of a Welcome Center at Morgan Hall and a new home for the Law School. Focus on academics has allowed Washburn to meet the needs of its students. And continued integration of Washburn University and the Washburn Institute of Technology will mean more options – and more diplomas – for students.

Washburn, Farley said, is well positioned to meet the expectations of employers looking for qualified graduates and of parents and students looking for a quality education that is a value for the tuition dollar. "We are poised again for dramatic change."

SESQUICENTENNIAL SIGNATURE EVENTS

FOUNDERS DAY (FEB. 6, 2013)

A celebration of Washburn's official birthday includes Lincoln Lecturer Manisha Sinha, professor and graduate program director at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. Sinha's topic will be "Race and Equality in the Age of Lincoln." She is an accomplished writer who authored "The Counterrevolution of Slavery: Politics and Ideology in Antebellum South Carolina" and dozens of articles for multiple publications. Sinha also co-edited volumes I and II of "African American Mosaic: A Documentary History from the African Slave Trade to The Twenty-First Century."

SESQUICENTENNIAL SONG COMPETITION

Students, employees, alumni and friends of Washburn are invited to participate in a competition to create a school song honoring our sesquicentennial. The winner will receive a cash prize of $500. The competition will include two phases. The first phase is the lyrics competition, with a deadline of April 1, 2013; and the second is the music competition, with a deadline of April 1, 2014. Formal introduction of the new song will occur in conjunction with the university's sesquicentennial celebration in 2015.

- Submissions may be electronic in Microsoft Word or on paper.
- Entrants must submit two copies, one with and one without the author's name.
- Multiple submissions from the same author or composer are acceptable, but must be on separate pages.
- Each submission must be accompanied by a signed paper or electronic entry form (available at washburn.edu/150).
- The winning submissions become the property of Washburn University.
- The committee reserves the right not to name a winner.
- Entrants who intend to submit music to accompany their own lyrics must submit the music separately to the second competition.
- More information on the music guidelines will be available in fall 2013.

For more information about the competition, including song-writing guidelines, visit washburn.edu/150.

SESQUICENTENNIAL STROKE AT WASHBURN

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

More than 125 people had an opportunity to participate in the art of bidding Nov. 17 at the Paint Washburn Art Auction.

Thirty-seven works of art, created by 33 artists during the April 21 Art En Plein Aire event on campus, were auctioned at the Memorial Union during a signature event in Washburn's celebration of the university's upcoming sesquicentennial.

"The sesquicentennial committee and those working on these events have done a wonderful job as we celebrate the tradition at Washburn," said President Jerry Farley. "The art auction is another example of the variety we have here, and the outstanding support we continue to receive from the community."

The artists who produced pieces come from an array of backgrounds, ranging from students and professors to renowned regional artists such as Barbara Waterman-Peters, bfa '73, Topeka, and Cally Krallman, bfa '81, Topeka.

Convocation kicked off the sesquicentennial celebration for the 2012-13 academic year. The event included speeches by Farley; Margaret Wood, associate professor, sociology and anthropology; Richard Liedtke, executive director, enrollment management; and Eric Benedict, president, Washburn Student Government Association.

During convocation, a video highlighting the second 50 years (1915-65) of the school's history debuted. View the video at washburn.edu/150 and read more about this period on pages 17-18.

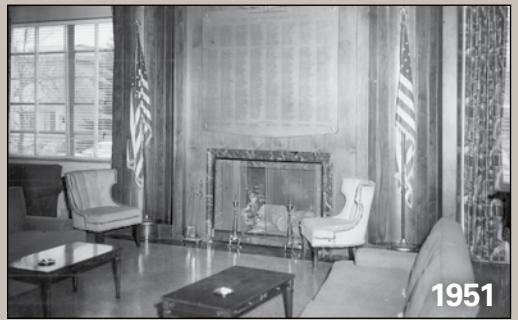

The fall semester also included commemorating 10 years of soccer at Washburn on Oct. 26 and recognition as the official state ornament to be displayed on the national Christmas tree in Washington, D.C.

Cindy Rogers, ba '69, Topeka, chairwoman of the 2012 Kansas

Ornament committee; and Amanda Hughes, ba '69, Topeka, assistant director, university relations, delivered and presented the ornaments on Dec. 6.

The 2012 Kansas Holiday Ornament will be available for purchase for $24 at several local retailers: The Ichabod Shop, Memorial Union, Washburn University; Mulvane Art Museum Gift Shop, 17th Street and Jewell Avenue; Rally House/Kansas Sampler, 5918 SW 21st St.; and the Kansas Historical Society Gift Shop, 6425 SW 6th Avenue. THE SECOND FIFTY (1915-65)

Highlights from the second 50 years of Washburn University

- 1915 Washburn celebrates its first 50 years during the first week of June. Festivities include a choir concert, alumni luncheon, pageants and commencement.
- 1916 The first Hobo Day is Friday, Nov. 10, celebrating school spirit before the Washburn vs. University of Kansas football game. Festivities become so raucous that classes are dismissed at 11:30 a.m.
- 1917 In May, Nonoso (formed from our motto non nobis solum), a senior women's honorary society, is established.
- The Washburn Ambulance Company is established in September.
- In November, Washburn announces the adoption of the Washburn Family Coat of Arms.
- 1918 The law school moves from its downtown location to Crane Observatory on Washburn's campus in September.
- Along with other colleges, Washburn establishes a Student Army Training Corps in October.
- The Spanish influenza hits Washburn in October, and the campus is closed until Dec. 30, though the Student Army Training Corps continues training on the closed campus.
- 1922 In honor of Louis Lerrick, ba '15, who died during World War I, the Lerrick Memorial Fountain and Exedra is built with money donated by his family.
- 1923 The Kappa Alpha Theta House is finished in January, making it the first home built on campus by a student social organization.
- 1924 Mulvane Art Museum opens to the public.
- 1928 On Sept. 28, Moore Bowl is dedicated in honor of prominent Topeka sportsman and Washburn supporter George Godfrey Moore.
- Whiting Field House is dedicated on Dec. 18 before a Washburn vs. University of Kansas basketball game. It is named in honor of A.B. Whiting, a member of the Washburn board of trustees for more than 50 years.

1938 The Ichabod is designed by graphic designer Bradbury Thompson, ba '34, honorary doctorate '65, and appears in the Kaw yearbook.

1939 Washburn student James Gibson designs a new Washburn flag, which is presented to alumni and the student body in June.

During the summer, Boswell Hall is remodeled to serve as a home for the law school.

1940 In February, Washburn celebrates its 75th anniversary with speeches from prominent Kansans. In June, the celebration continues with a drama recounting the school's history and other events during commencement.

1941 In April, a committee of Topeka leaders votes to begin a campaign to make Washburn a municipal university. Washburn becomes Washburn Municipal University on July 1 and applications to admissions increase by 74 percent from the previous year.

1942 After a change in its constitution, Washburn's student government begins to include representation from the African-American community.

The Navy V-5 Pilot Training Program was established. By the end of World War II, 900 aviators had received basic ground and flight training.

1943 A Navy V-12 Officer Training Unit was organized on campus, and all campus housing was claimed for military use. Washburn adopted a trimester schedule (beginning on Nov. 1) in order to synchronize the college with the Navy schedule.

1945 In March, the Cadet Nurse Corps training class begins with an enrollment of 25.

1946 In November, University Place opens as housing for student veterans and faculty with veterans in their families.

1948 In January, cast-aluminum blue and white miniature Ichabods are introduced at an Alumni Association meeting. In May, at a student council meeting, Mr. Ichabod is adopted as the official emblem of the student body.

In September, an Air Force ROTC program begins on campus in the Engineering Building.

1949 In February, the alumni seal is adopted during a meeting of the Alumni Association board of directors.

1951 The Memorial Union opens on Dec. 3 with a Sadie Hawkins dance. The Union was built to honor Washburn students, alumni, staff and Shawnee County residents who died in World Wars I and II.

1952 Washburn changes its name to Washburn University of Topeka in hopes of achieving better recognition.

1954 Brown v. Board of Education Supreme Court case is decided on May 17. From the initial filing to the final arguments, 11 Washburn law alumni played roles in the case: one was a judge who heard the initial case, three represented the defense, four represented the plaintiff and three represented the State of Kansas.

1956 Morgan Hall is dedicated on Feb. 5, costing approximately $1 million. In October, newly renovated Carnegie Hall is dedicated as the new home of the School of Law.

On Dec. 7, Washburn launches the "Dr. Ichabod" television program, which airs in 15-minute segments on WIBW-TV.

1960 On Sept. 19, Science Hall is dedicated. After the death of President Bryan Stoffer in 1961, it is named Stoffer Hall.

1961 Washburn receives state funds for the first time.

1963 Washburn purchases a 1620 IBM computer to "stay abreast of the frontiers of learning."

1964 The degree granted by the School of Law changes from a bachelor of laws to a juris doctor.

1965 Although an official ceremony celebrating Washburn's 100th anniversary takes place on Feb. 7, the spring and fall semesters include several events commemorating the milestone.

KTWU begins broadcasting on Oct. 21.

• Washburn memory: “Although I have many wonderful memories and some quite amusing stories about my time at Washburn, I always tell people how open and accommodating the Biology faculty were to students. Dr. (Thomas) O'Connor was my mentor in morphology and an outstanding role model for teaching. Whenever I'm planning a lecture or presentation, I always try to emulate his clear and precise teaching style. After 32 years of teaching in medical school, I still consider his teaching as the gold standard. The faculty were always available to help the students. Early one evening before an exam, some of the students could not get into the lab to study comparative vertebrate anatomy. Somehow we contacted Dr. (Don) Boyer and he returned to the university to unlock the lab for us. A simple action that set an example for helping students achieve excellence.”

RUNNING FOR A CAUSE

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

The 2012 Fun Run and Campus Walk on Sept. 29 had a little bit of everything, from good music, to treats and prizes, to runners wearing tutus – all for a good cause in the Alumni Association's scholarship fund.

"We are thrilled that so many alumni and friends participate in this signature event for our scholarship fund," said Alumni Association director Susie Hoffmann. "This event goes a long way toward helping students and future students at Washburn."

Proceeds from the 2011 Fun Run helped raise nearly $30,000 in scholarships for 83 students.

About 200 people, including runners, walkers and volunteers, attended the 2012 5K run and two-mile walk on a cool Saturday morning in Topeka. After the run and walk, participants settled into the Bradbury Thompson Alumni Center to receive prizes and awards.

Winners in each age division received a medal, including Kevin Lemasters, who hit the finish line in 19 minutes, 34 seconds to post the best overall time and win the 40-44 men's group.

Greg Gaul, bs '98, Topeka, who won the 2011 race, finished in 20:08, followed by Alex Glashausser (20:19), Tom Trusdale (20:22) and Alex Hawkins (20:30). Gaul won the 35-39 men's division, Trusdale the 60-64 men's division and Hawkins the 20-24 men's division.

Rebecca (Collins) Arendorf, ba '02, Topeka, clocked the fastest time among women in 23:11. Log onto washburn.edu/alumni and visit the Events and Reunions page for complete results.

Among the sponsors for the Fun Run were Capitol Federal, Dillons, Hy-Vee, American Family Insurance (the Brad Noller agency), Sunflower Marketing, Jostens, Frito-Lay, Washburn University Foundation, Gage Bowl, Pizza Hut, Sunflower Striders Running Club, Pinegar, Smith and Associates Inc., Kalos Inc., Washburn University School of Nursing, Jock's Nitch, Ichabod Shop, Visit Topeka, Inc. and Dr. Tunes.

Other sponsors were Tom and Ann Adrian, David and Mary Manley, Gary and Barbara Leabo, Brian and Stacey Calhoon, Bill Marshall, Cindy Rogers, Chris and Erin McGown, Mark and Julie Ross, Roger VanHoozer, Dennis Bohm, Bobby and Billie Jean Graham, and John and Carrie Haverty.

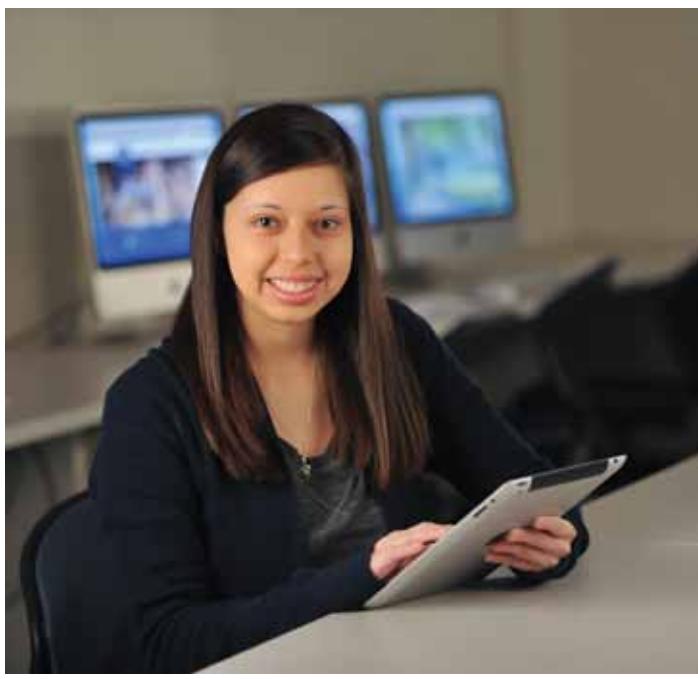

Gayle (Hurst) Smith, bba '86, Topeka, and Elaine Adair wore tutus while competing in the Sept. 29 Fun Run and Campus Walk. About 200 people participated in the annual event, which benefits the Alumni Association's scholarship fund. Photo Submitted

SCHOLARSHIPS HELP STUDENTS MAKE IMPACT IN LATINO COMMUNITY

By Sarah Van Dalsom
svandalsm@wufoundation.org

THE RECIPIENTS

Washburn students, clockwise from lower left, Shelby Perez, freshman mass media major from Topeka; Caprice Cortez, senior radiologic technology major from Topeka; and Bianca Martinez, junior biology major from Garden City, Kan., received awards from MANA de Topeka for their leadership and service.

Shelby Perez, Caprice Cortez and Bianca Martinez lead separate lives at Washburn, but their academic performances, leadership and community service helped each receive an award from MANA de Topeka for their positive impact in the Topeka and Hispanic communities.

Each credits scholarships for her ability to get involved and for her performance in the classroom.

Perez, a freshman mass media major from Topeka, received a scholarship from MANA de Topeka as well as Washburn's Leadership Institute and other academic scholarships from the university.

"It's difficult paying for college, so any support you get is appreciated," Perez said. "Scholarships also encourage me to try my hardest because I know someone else is investing in me and depending on me to do my best."

Perez is living at home during her first year to save money and recently started working. She is grateful that scholarships give her the opportunity to participate in other activities at Washburn, including the Leadership Challenge Event.

"I am really interested in getting involved with the Challenge Event," she said. "I participated in it my senior year of high school, and I'd like to get both sides of the experience – participating and organizing the event."

Cortez, a senior radiologic technology major from Topeka, serves as the vice president of Washburn Student Government Association and received the Community Service Award from MANA de Topeka.

Cortez has received scholarships from Washburn University and the Alumni Association, in addition to private scholarships.

"Scholarships helped me offset the need to take out student loans," Cortez said. "I didn't have to have a job throughout college, and I was able to focus on my studies and get involved."

Cortez recently volunteered with El Centro de Topeka, where she helped develop a health survey by researching questions and issues for community leaders.

"I think it's important to volunteer in the community because any amount of service assists the goals of any organization," Cortez said.

Like Cortez, Martinez, a junior biology major from Garden City, Kan., is also involved in the community, volunteering at the Kansas Children's Discovery Center and mentoring young women in the Hermanitas program with MANA de Topeka.

"I chose that program because I feel like as a young Latina woman having someone to look up to who is doing good things is a great motivation," Martinez said.

Martinez plans to attend medical school and help people with low incomes. In the meantime, she is getting through school with the help of scholarships, which she earned from MANA de Topeka, Washburn and other organizations.

"Scholarships mean everything to me," Martinez said. "Without them I would not be here at Washburn studying biology. I would not have the hopes and dreams to change medicine for low-income people."

Nancy Tate, assistant vice president, academic affairs and interim dean, school of applied studies, received the Education Award from MANA de Topeka for her service and support of the Leadership Empowerment and Development (LEAD) program, which provides leadership training for Latino high school students.

"I was very touched and humbled that they chose to honor me with their annual education award," Tate said. "I have devoted my professional career to educating young people, and I find it very gratifying to watch them blossom into educated adults who make a difference in their communities."

GIGOUS GIVES BACK

By Sarah Van Dalsem • svandalsem@wufoundation.org

Joe Gigous graduated from Washburn in 1978 after 11 years as a student.

He took the difficult route – working a full-time job during the day and taking classes at night to pursue a bachelor of business administration degree.

"I had some great professors who really inspired me and got me excited about business," Gigous said. "The dean in the School of Business also helped me navigate the classes so I could graduate without attending day classes."

Washburn University Foundation Trustee Joe Gigous and his wife, Gladys, donated $100,000 to endow the Joseph E. and Gladys A. Gigous Business Scholarship. Joe Gigous spent 11 years studying for his degree while working full-time and said he wants to help students without the means to attend school otherwise.

The experience inspired Gigous to help students so they wouldn't have to work as hard as he did. Joe and his wife, Gladys, recently donated $100,000 to endow the Joseph E. and Gladys A. Gigous Business Scholarship for School of Business students.

Joe Gigous hopes it reduces the need for students to work while taking classes.

"I want to help those kids that don't have a means to go to school," he said. "I believe education is the key that unlocks the door for a good future. It's a passport for advancement in a modern world."

Gigous said he also made the donation because he believes in the future of Washburn.

"I am impressed with Dr. Farley and the job he has done," he said. "The university is a world-class organization and an important part of the City of Topeka."

During his career, Gigous held several positions at The American Companies in Topeka. He founded Nationwide Learning Inc. in 1994, publishing books written for elementary school students.

Gigous serves on the board of Nationwide Learning and the Washburn University Foundation's Board of Trustees.

A FIT FOR A KING

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

Blake Bryant liked his chances when he applied to work as an admissions counselor at Washburn. No way would his alma mater pass on hiring last year's Homecoming king, he thought.

"I figured if you wanted somebody to tell the story of going to school here, it should probably be your Homecoming king," said Bryant, ba '12.

That proved prophetic a few months later when Bryant joined the admissions staff on Sept. 11, less than a year after he achieved a goal set shortly before arriving as a freshman.

"Being Homecoming king was one of my goals when I came to Washburn," he said, "because I believe in the Midwest, specifically Kansas, that it is such an honor because it's your peer group showing you that you're doing the right thing. I wanted to do the right thing at Washburn"

For Bryant, doing the right thing was being so involved that Richard Liedtke, executive director, enrollment management, refers to him as

"Mr. Washburn."

"He was in everything," Liedtke said. "For him to be out on the road talking about Washburn and telling the Washburn story ... he lived it. He has a great story to tell."

Bryant's story includes membership in Sigma Phi Epsilon and a senior fellowship with the Leadership Institute. He was also president of Alpha Lambda Delta and a member of the French Club, Mortar Board, Future Alumni Network, Sagamore and Bod Squad.

"When I was looking at colleges, Washburn wasn't on the radar," Bryant said. "But the more I thought about it, the more it made sense. I went to a medium-sized high school (in Independence, Kan.) where I knew everybody. I figured if I got involved here like I was in high school, it would be a similar experience."

Bryant received a bachelor of arts in corporate communication in May and minored in French and leadership studies. Within a few months, he discovered the opening at Washburn.

"I really didn't want to leave Topeka, and all the jobs I was looking at here were in human resources, recruiting and training and development because I wanted to help people," he said. "Then it hit me that helping students just sounded more valuable."

"It's crossed my mind numerous times that if I could be a career student, I would. Now, I'm on campus, and I love this campus."

As an admissions counselor, Bryant is responsible for recruiting in southeast Kansas, Johnson County in Kansas, the state of Missouri, and Shawnee Heights and Cair Paravel high schools in Topeka.

His duties include counseling via phone, email, social media and other avenues, and helping to coordinate events such as Ichabod Junior and Senior Day on campus.

"The job is relationship management, which I'm comfortable with after my time as a student here," he said. "I have an advantage in that I went to school here and I lived the Washburn experience. We have to help create a personal experience for prospective students. Fortunately, I can do that from my own experiences."

SPORTS

TRIO INDUCTED INTO HALL OF FAME

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

Three former standout student-athletes were enshrined into the Washburn athletics Hall of Fame during a Nov. 11 ceremony at Bradbury Thompson Alumni Center:

NICK KRESIC, FOOTBALL, 1983-86

Kresic, bba '87, Highland, Mich., booted 35 field goals and had 186 points during his career as a kicker at Washburn. He was a second-team All-American pick in 1986, going 18 of 24 on field goals and 31 of 34 on point-after attempts. His 186 career points rank 10th in school history. He was first-team NAIA all-district and first-team all-Central States Intercollegiate Conference (CSIC) in 1986.

JOY (BENTON) SKEENS, BASKETBALL, 1981-85

Skeens, bs '85, Shawnee Mission, Kan., left Washburn as the school's all-time leading scorer with 1,356 points (currently seventh on the all-time scoring list). She averaged 11.8 points and 7.0 rebounds per game, including a career-best 13.1 points as a senior. With 806 rebounds, she ranks fourth on the school's career list. Skeens earned first-time all-CSIC honors during her senior season.

JESSE SHERER, TENNIS, 1993-97

Sherer, bs '97, Rossville, Kan., was a three-time All-American, including in singles and doubles during his senior season. He finished his singles career with a record of 72-29 and was 82-20 in doubles, posting a combined mark of 154-49. During his senior year, Sherer and Santiago Giraldo set a Washburn single-season record in doubles with 32 wins. The duo reached the Division II national championship match.

TICKET TO TIMELESS

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

Stunning upsets, heart-breakers, close calls, games played in snowstorms, conference scuffles in the blazing heat. You name it, Crosby Powell has seen it during more than 50 years of service as a game-day employee for Washburn.

The Topeka native hasn't missed a football game since 1962, a stretch that covers more than 250 games and 12 head coaches.

"I haven't missed a football game and I've only missed one basketball game, and that was because of a car accident," said Powell, 89, who also works part-time on weekdays at Petro Allied Health Center. "I've enjoyed doing this. Washburn has been great to me."

A longtime manager at Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway (ATSF), Powell began working as a ticket-taker and usher for football and basketball games in the 1950s.

"Back then, I was a substitute. I'd fill in when my boss or somebody else at Santa Fe couldn't make it to help out at the games," he said. "When an opening came up, I started out as a ticket-taker at all the games. One Saturday, my boss had a wreck on the way home and called me and told me what I needed to do because he was in charge on game days. When he retired later, I took over."

Powell's work includes directing Washburn's ticket crew and ensuring that officials have everything they need.

"It's an eight-hour day. I get everybody lined up, take the officials to their room before the game, at halftime and after the game," Powell said. "Once I get everything situated, I roam around and make sure everybody is doing their job."

Powell retired as a manager in the accounting department at ATSF in 1986. In addition to working at the railroad for 40 years, he served in the National Guard for 37 years, retiring as a lieutenant colonel.

A Topeka High alumnus, he was a war hero in the Army, receiving the Purple Heart after being wounded in World War II.

"I was in the infantry and got shrapnel in my neck, back and knee at (the Battle of) Cassino (in Italy) in 1944," Powell said. "They had to cut my boots off, and my feet were purple. I don't have good circulation in my feet to this day."

Powell recovered, returning to Topeka to marry his high school sweetheart, the late Ruth Powell, in 1946. The couple had a daughter, Crosleen Powell, who received a bachelor of business administration from Washburn in 1970.

"I'm very proud to say my daughter graduated from Washburn," he said. "I've always had a connection to Washburn, and the people here have been great to me. Dr. Farley remembers who I am and stops to say hello at games. The people at Washburn are like that, good people."

Powell attributes his longevity to a healthy lifestyle, including the discipline to avoid alcohol and tobacco.

"In my entire life, I've never smoked one cigarette or taken one drink of alcohol," he said. "I believe that's why I'm in this shape at my age."

AN ONGOING STORY

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

While I was interviewing ticket-taker supreme Crosby Powell (story on previous page) in September, longtime baseball coach Steve Anson stepped in and chimed in on the man who hasn't missed a football game at Washburn since a gallon of gas cost a quarter.

"Now this is the man you want to talk to if you want to hear some stories," Anson said.

One of the more compelling stories is the rise of Washburn's football team during the last decade.

"I've seen a lot of good teams, and some bad teams," Powell said. "A lot of changes over the years. What they've got going here now is pretty special."

Special because every home game here is an event, complete with tailgating, the football team and band marching through campus and a stadium that's become a home field advantage.

I can only remember one night during my years as a student at Washburn that bristled with the atmosphere every college football game should have. It was Oct. 29, 1998, against archrival Emporia State.

The game was televised on a Thursday night, the stadium was full and the students and fans were energized. It was a once-in-a-decade atmosphere at Moore Bowl. I remember wishing it'd happen more often.

"I remember a lot of them, a lot of games," Powell said. "I know for a while, we weren't taking as many tickets."

That began to change in 2002 when Craig Schurig became the head coach. Washburn began to build, literally and figuratively. Stadium renovations accompanied winning and more fans.

Suddenly, the north side of Moore Bowl resembled the parking lots of universities across the country on Saturday afternoons in the fall.

"It took the hard work of a lot of people to get to this point," Schurig said. "We're very appreciative of the support we get from the university and the community. It's a big reason we've been successful."

Another great story at Washburn; one with many chapters to come.

FINAL FRONTIER: WASHBURN'S HOMECOMING

By Ernie W. Webb III • ernie.webb@washburn.edu

Homecoming blasted off with the Washburn Student Government Association's Centennial Ball on Oct. 22 and landed on Oct. 27 when king Bear Hollins, Kansas City, Mo., and queen Madelyne Martin, Augusta, Kan., were crowned.

In between those events were a number of activities throughout the week, ranging from a Say Cheez photo booth to the Yell Like Hell pep rally. The theme for Homecoming was 2012 Washburn Odyssey: Bods in Space.

The Alumni Association hosted an Alumni Fellows reunion reception, Fellows luncheon and After Hours on Oct. 26, followed by a tailgate before the Homecoming game against Northwest Missouri State University, Maryville, on Oct. 27.

"Homecoming is one of the great traditions at universities, Washburn included," said President Jerry Farley. "It's particularly special in a place like Topeka where the community has a close connection to the university."

The festivities on Oct. 27 included a parade around campus. Winners of the float contest were: Greek, Delta Sigma and Sigma Phi Epsilon; miscellaneous, Student Leadership Council; WU-Wah, Student Life; large float, Dancing Blues; and mini-float, Washburn Players.

The Alumni Fellows luncheon

ALUMNA CREATING A LEGACY TO HONOR HER FATHER

By Kathy Busch • kbusch@wufoundation.org

Marianne Webb, ba '58, doesn't have many memories of her father, Samuel Webb, jd '36. He died suddenly at the age of 45 when Marianne and her twin sister Peggy were 5 – five years after he graduated from Washburn's School of Law.

Now, 70 years later, Webb is honoring her father's memory by establishing the Samuel Earl Webb Law Scholarship endowed fund with an estate gift of $360,000.

"I have known for many years that I owed a huge debt of gratitude for my career and my life," Webb said. "My father died when we were 5, and then mother when we were 15. We didn't have any money and our grandparents were elderly and without much income."

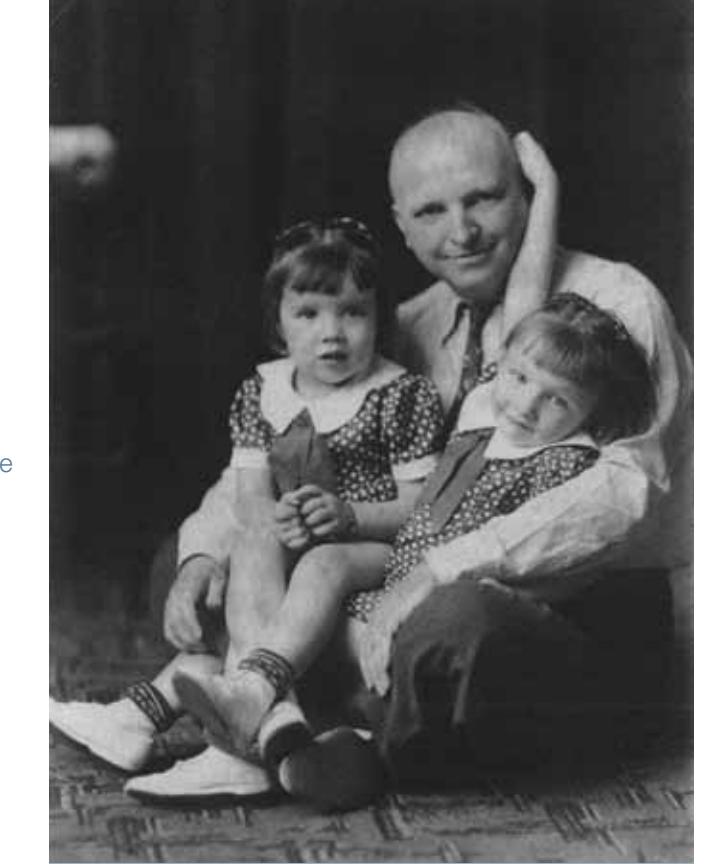

Lack of financial resources did not deter the Webb twins from pursuing their dreams of a music education at Washburn. At an early age, Marianne wanted to be a professor and Peggy wanted to teach music. When they were students at Topeka High, they met Marie Moore, dean of women at Washburn.

"She was such an advocate for us," Marianne said. "She counseled us through high school after our mother died. She went out of her way to search for scholarships so we could come to Washburn. We wouldn't have been able to go to college if it weren't for her help."

Webb has had a distinguished career. She graduated from Washburn summa cum laude with a degree in music education. She went on to earn a master's degree at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, where she graduated with distinction.

Webb was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship in 1961, which allowed her to study in Paris, France, under André Marchal, a world renowned master of the organ at the time.

In 1965, Webb accepted a job at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, to build the school's organ department. She is an internationally recognized organ performer and teacher and has received numerous awards.

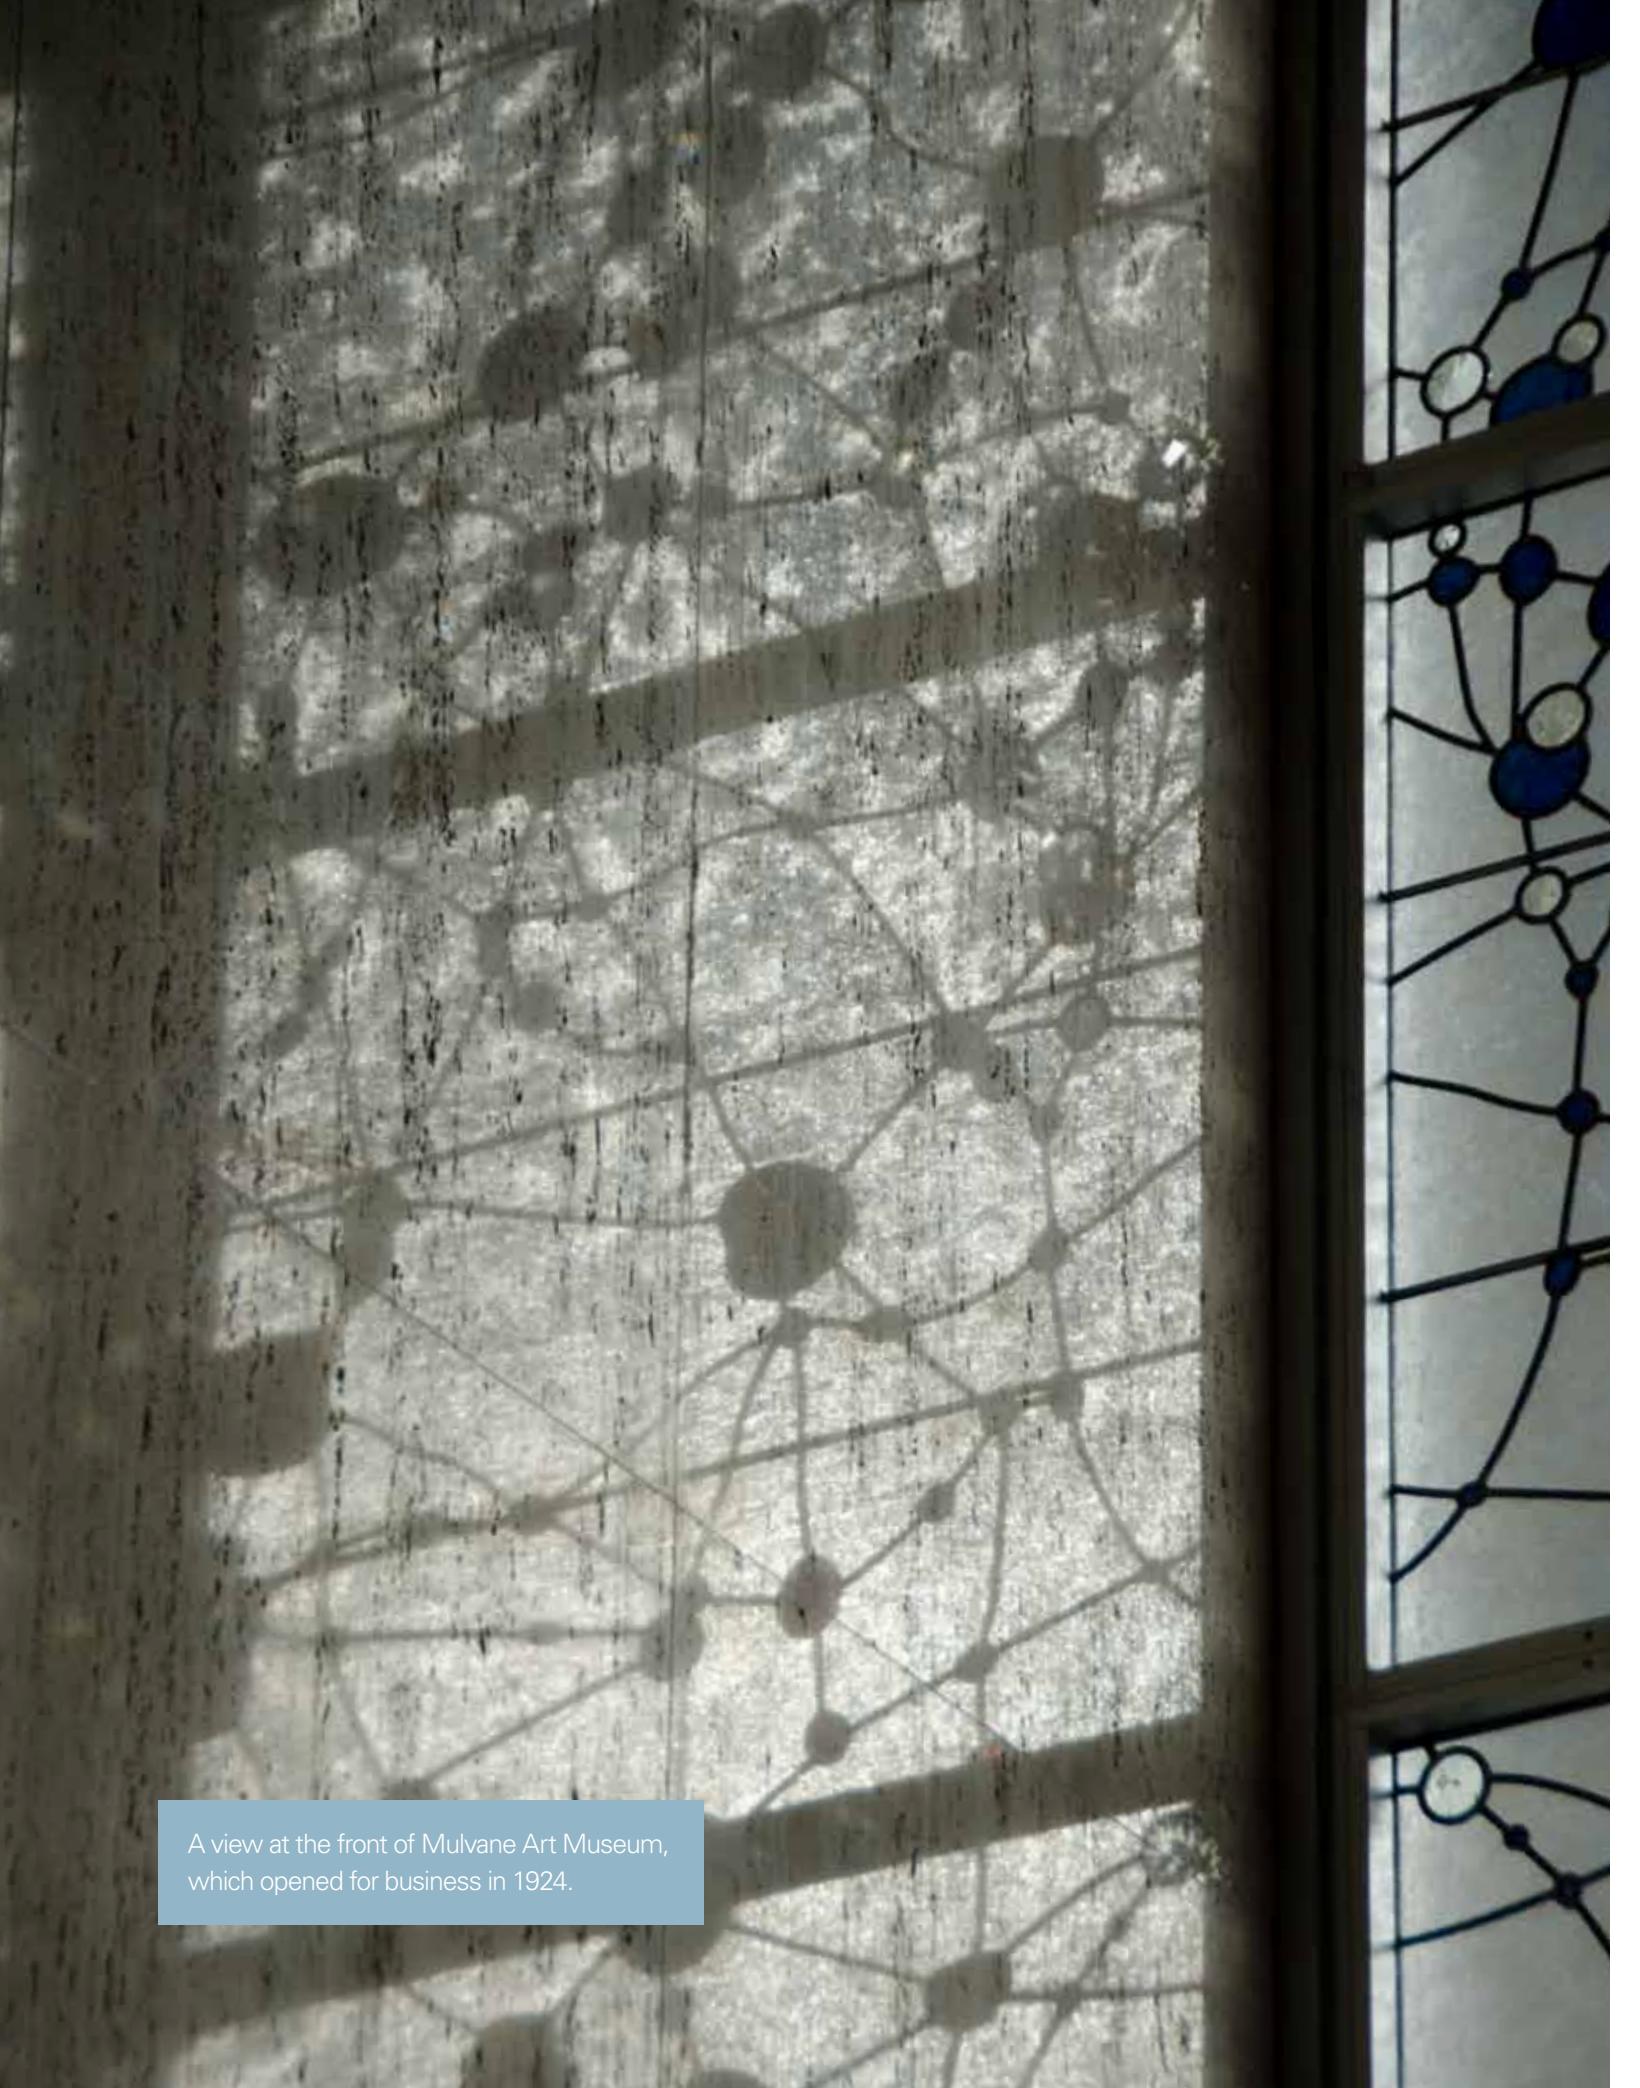

Marianne and Peggy Webb, at age 3, with their father Samuel Earl Webb. Marianne, who received a bachelor of arts from Washburn in 1958, is honoring her father's memory by establishing a scholarship in his name. Photo Submitted

"I owe everything to Washburn," she said. "The university helped set the foundation for both of our wonderful careers. Washburn provided four years of scholarship assistance for Peggy and me at a time when we had no money of our own. We would not have been able to go to college if it weren't for Washburn. I have always wanted to repay the university for giving us the chance to obtain an education which led to such wonderful and fulfilling careers."

Webb chose to give back to Washburn by creating an endowed scholarship that will provide full Kansas resident tuition for a law student for many years to come.

"This scholarship in my father's name will create a permanent memory of him," she said. "His name will live on with this scholarship."

IN MEMORY

ALICE MAE (ADAM) YOUNG, DEAN OF NURSING, 75, LAS VEGAS, NEV., ON JULY 6

Young was instrumental in the establishment of a nursing program at Washburn in 1973, serving as director for 11 years. In 1982, she was named the founding dean of the School of Nursing, after the School was deemed a freestanding unit of the university by the Kansas Legislature.

Young, a dean emerita and professor emerita, retired in 2000 after 27 years of service in the School of Nursing. In 2004, she received the Lilla Day Monroe Award presented to women who have distinguished themselves as teachers, instructors, administrators or benefactors at Washburn.

"During her tenure, Dean Young taught thousands of students and has seen approximately 2,000 students graduate and enter the nursing profession," said President Farley at the time of her retirement. "We, and they, all owe her a debt of gratitude for her service."

Her other honors included Career Woman of the Year 2000 from the Sales and Marketing Executives of Topeka, the Excellence in Writing Award, the Dean's Award from Sigma Theta Tau, Red Cross Nurse Award and Paragon Award. She also was a member of Nonoso.

Young was an active volunteer with American Red Cross Kansas Capital Area Chapter for 20 years, having served as chapter chairwoman and on the board of directors. She was a former president of the Rotary Club, served on several outreach ministries for Most Pure Heart of Mary Catholic Church in Topeka, and supported numerous civic activities, including the Topeka Symphony Society, Topeka Civic Theatre & Academy and Valeo Recovery Center.

Survivors include sisters Lois Helland, Joyce Burlog, Evelyn McCollough and Mary Herbold; brothers Tom Adam, Tim Adam and Jim Adam; three stepchildren; and eight grandchildren.

Daniel McMillin, bas '06, 63, Topeka, on May 20. He served in the Marines and worked as a funeral director and as a therapist at Clarence Kelley Youth Services.
